

Journal of the Southwest was founded 1959 as Arizona and the West, the first journal of Western American history in the United States, and began publishing in 1987 as a multidisciplinary peer-reviewed quarterly dedicated to integrated regional study of the American Southwest, northern Mexico, and the US-Mexico borderlands. For more than half a century it has stood alone in general academic publishing as an award-winning journal representing a transborder region of world-historical significance. Now all-digital and open access on Project MUSE, we publish two issues per calendar year. Journal of the Southwest publishes broadly across disciplines including intellectual and social history, gender and women's studies, LGBTQ studies, anthropology, archaeology, architecture, folklore, politics, borderlands studies, literature, cinema, photography, visual cultures, geography, and natural history and ecology. Submissions and inquiries should be made online, using the journal's submissions portal, which can be found on the journal's web site: <https://jsw.arizona.edu/>.
